Annual Report

Department of the Interior
Bureau of Land Management

Washington, D.C.

1950-1951

Volume 1

During the past year, the Bureau of Land Management has continued its efforts to manage the public lands of the United States in a manner that will provide for the enjoyment of the people and the preservation of the natural resources of the country. The Bureau has been particularly active in the field of land acquisition, and has acquired over 1,000,000 acres of land during the year. This acquisition has been made possible through the cooperation of the States and the Federal Government, and through the use of the Federal Lands Acquisition Act of 1946.

The Bureau has also been active in the field of land disposal, and has disposed of over 1,000,000 acres of land during the year. This disposal has been made possible through the use of the Federal Lands Disposal Act of 1946, and through the cooperation of the States and the Federal Government. The Bureau has also been active in the field of land management, and has managed over 1,000,000 acres of land during the year. This management has been made possible through the use of the Federal Lands Management Act of 1946, and through the cooperation of the States and the Federal Government.

The Bureau has also been active in the field of land conservation, and has conserved over 1,000,000 acres of land during the year. This conservation has been made possible through the use of the Federal Lands Conservation Act of 1946, and through the cooperation of the States and the Federal Government.

The Bureau has also been active in the field of land reclamation, and has reclaimed over 1,000,000 acres of land during the year. This reclamation has been made possible through the use of the Federal Lands Reclamation Act of 1946, and through the cooperation of the States and the Federal Government.

The Bureau has also been active in the field of land research, and has conducted over 1,000,000 acres of land during the year. This research has been made possible through the use of the Federal Lands Research Act of 1946, and through the cooperation of the States and the Federal Government.
